1. The public sale of “Under the Sunlight” (UTS) copyright tokens achieved record-breaking results in total subscribed funds on the TaleX Launchpad. Across three public sale pools, nearly $40,000 (as of the December 20 estimate) was accumulated by the end of the subscription period, based on the market value of the subscription tokens. However, due to limitations in the recent version of the Launchpad smart contract, only $18,000 (as of the December 20 estimate) in subscription tokens were used for TGE. The remaining funds committed by users have been refunded accordingly.

2. During this public sale, the TaleX Launchpad lacked a mechanism to automatically deduct subscription funds from users' balance and distribute the corresponding UTS tokens at the initial price. As a result, users had to manually claim their UTS tokens, and the TaleX team had to process refunds manually where necessary. All blockchain transactions are recorded in the detailed reviews for each pool in the previous sections. This has already been addressed, and the new version of the TaleX Launchpad will automate this process for next token public sales. At the time of publishing this report, all funds are fully and transparently distributed.

3. During this public sale, the TaleX Launchpad lacked a mechanism to automatically reallocate allocation between three different subscription pools, which caused a situation where users were unable to use all used subscription tokens to higher UTS allocation, especially in the ULTI pool due to an oversupply of subscribed funds. This has already been addressed, and the new version of the TaleX Launchpad will automate this process for next token public sales.
